TUESDAY, MAY 18, 1875.

LYING ABED IN THE MORNING.

I love to rove in the shady grove,
When gentle zephyrs are floating;
I love to sit at the social board,
Where buck wheat cakes are smoking;
I love to gaze at the golden blaze,
When Sol the West is adorning;
But this I love far better than all--
To lie abed in the morning.

That poets should sing of the joys of Spring
Is not the least surprising,
But I cannot conceive how a man could weave
A sonnet to early rising.
Though Franklin of old was a sage, I am told,
I can't go with him in rearning
The blissful scenes in the land of dreams,
While lying abed in the morning.

Let those who choose retire to snooze
When the ducks and chickens are going,
And rub their eyes when forced to rise
At chanticleer's dismal crowing;
They lose the sight of the gorgeous night,
And spend their days in yawning
Till midnight damp I'll burn the lamp,
And lie abed in the morning.

THE FALK LAWS.

THE CONFLICT BETWEEN CHURCH AND STATE IN GERMANY.--WHAT AN ITALIAN NEWSPAPER SAYS THE VATICAN REALLY WANTS.

These laws rest, of course, upon a different system from our own. In Prussia the Catholic, like the Lutheran and Reformed churches, has the footing of an established church, endowed and supported in part, specially protected and privileged by the state. The system assumed, an American who looks into this legislation is simply amazed. 'Can it be,' he says, 'that these are indeed the laws against which such a shriek has gone abroad?' The first provides for an academical education of the clergy of all the established churches, without interference with their theology, and provides also a right of the government to object to the settlement of any one in a clerical office in either of the established churches, that is, if he is a convicted criminal or under indictment for a criminal offense, or if facts warrant the conclusion that he will avail himself of his position to incite resistance to the laws and procure a breach of the public peace. The facts must be stated, and thirty days are allowed for a contrary showing. The second and third laws provide for a just protection of the clergy and laity against abuses of ecclesiastical power--leaving to the bishops, nevertheless, a large 'disciplinary power,' notably more than is allowed by Würtemberg, where there is no complaint. The fourth law secures to every adult citizen the right to withdraw peaceably from any church, if such be his wish.

"What is the state of mind which can find in such laws a 'barbarious persecution of the church?' Surely, it is one against which legal precautions are needed. Or who are the men that desire the acts here forbidden? When, for example, it is provided that a priest may be dismissed by his bishop from his office upon any fair showing of incapacity or misconduct, but that none shall be flung out without regular process and without a hearing, we must ask, What bishop, then, has the face to confess, by raging against such restriction, that he has a mind to do what no fair man of the world could be guilty of? All make the confession. All cry out that the church is robbed of its freedom! Of the necessity of such laws the Romish outcry against them is proof enough. When men proclaim themselves wronged because they are not indulged in a freedom of irresponsible tyranny, they betray a notion of right and wrong which should be kept under correction.

"It appears from this slight survey that the breach of engagement has been with the church; that the several dates of 1837, 1865-6, 1870-72 represent either permitted advances or premeditated aggressions on its part; that the fault of Prussia has consisted simply in yielding too much, and that the nation was forced at least to a point where it must either refuse to yield further or as good as sign itself a province and dependency of the ultramontane empire. It has been indicated, moreover, that behind this series of sacerdotal aggessions lurk vast plans of conquest, levelled at Prussia first of all, and that the existence and consequence of that kingdom form, in fact, its unpardonable offence. There is now a confirmation of this view, which should leave little room for doubt. In November last the Voce della Verita, an organ of the Vatican, confessed frankly that the present conflict had not been caused by Bismarck's policy, that it would not end with his ministry and that only the extinction of the Prussian state would content Rome. 'The contest,' it went on to say, 'will continue as long as Prussia exists, for its cause lies in the very nature of that state. Prussia is in its origin and development in direct contradiction with the church, and therefore it must always be the chief and deadly enemy of Rome. Prussia in its present form rests on Protestantism and its teachings: it is the wall and fortress of Protestant Germany: * * with Prussia stands or falls the war with the church in Europe.' That is unequivocal, surely: 'the wall and fortress of Protestant Germany' must be broken down, and in that necessity lies the real occasion of the conflict now raging. Rome itself says that. In face of this frank avowal, let one look at those German priests playing the martyr, and calling upon all the world to behold and see how wantonly they are persecuted. With what standard of holiness other than Roman were such a tactic compatible?

"It is quite true, however, that Prussia is in direct contradiction with the Roman church, for the reason that modern civilization itself is so. Just at the points where modern civilization, or any state representing it, must maintain freedom, just there Rome must imperiously demand subjection. Freedom of religion, of intellect, of personal conscience, of science, research, discussion, communication of thought and knowledge--the state of barbarous which does not sustain these liberties, and that one which does sustain them is under condemnation of Rome. The state, again, cannot undertake its proper functions, as having charge of the public order and welfare, without being from the same side declared a trespasser. It necessarily assumes authority in regard to marriage, but is imperiously warned off. 'Civil marriage,' Rome says, 'is concubinage,' while the Catholic Professor Stolz, of Freiburg, gently terms it 'a sacrament of the devil.' It undertakes a systematic education of the people, and again is warned off; 'the school is an appendage of the church.' It offers equal and impartial protection to its citizens without distinction of class, creed or profession, and is met once more with awful gestures of prohibition. There are classes of citizens--Catholic priests, professors in Catholic universities, teachers in Catholic schools, &c.--to whom, as against their ecclesiastical superiors, the state shall offer no protection. We are not here imagining cases, but touching upon actual points of collision in Germany.--[From D. A. Wasson's paper before the Social Science Association.

THE DAY.

The memorial services in the Opera House last Decoration day gave very general satisfaction, and it is hoped that Stevens Post will follow its own example and give the public something of that kind again.

The governor and council of New Hampshire have proved themselves guilty of political treachery in deciding the senatorial questions without consulting the superior court upon the subject as they had promised. They now declare the votes cast for "Natt" Head to be blanks, and gave his seat to Priest, a Democrat; they also gave a certificate of election to Proctor, a Democrat, in place of Todd, Republican. A sharp protest against the decision was afterwards read by a Republican counsellor.

The city of Baltimore; we believe, is to pay a part of the expenses attending the visit of the Fifth Maryland regiment to Boston on the 17th of June. Similar assistance, by appropriation or subscription, will be made in some other cities to their military companies that attend the Bunker Hill celebration. Something of the same kind ought to be done here. We want to see the ranks of the Veteran Association full when they go to Boston, but a number of members feel indisposed to incur the expense. A little liberality on the part of our citizens would enable the Veterans to make a fine appearance.

MISS CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN'S FAREWELL TO THE STAGE.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The final appearance of the distinguished actress, Miss Charlotte Cushman, upon the stage, which took place at the Globe Theatre Saturday evening, formed the most notable dramatic event that has transpired in Boston this season. When the distinguished tragedienne formed a determination to quit the stage at the conclusion of the present season, she reserved her final farewell for the city of her birth. Her farewell engagement has now been played, and the great actress will be seen no more upon the stage she has trod so long and so honorably. Shakespeare's "Macbeth" was fittingly chosen for her last representation, and Miss Cushman was supported in the character of Lady Macbeth by Mr. C. W. Waller as Macbeth and the company called together to assist her during the past two weeks. "Guy Mannering" had in the afternoon drawn a large house, and there was another great throng in the evening. The assemblage on the latter occasion was quite noticeable in character as well as in regard to numbers. There was an unusual display of gray heads in the audience. Miss Cushman never acted Lady Macbeth more spiritedly or with greater intensity and effect. There was oft repeated applause, and the distinguished artiste was on several occasions called before the curtain. At the end of her last scene—the sleep-walking, where her grand abilities were even more conspicuous than elsewhere—she was made the recipient of an elegant bouquet.

At the end of the play, after Miss Cushman had changed the attire of the stage for that of private life, an interesting scene was enacted on the stage. The curtain arose and displayed two beautiful bronze figures of Mercury and Fortune, which were to be presented to the retiring artiste as a slight token of the esteem in which she is held by her own townspeople. A profusion of flowers ornamented a table in the rear, and also the bases of the pedestals upon which the bronzes were placed. Some half dozen or more of the donors of the gifts were upon the stage. Miss Cushman was led forward by Mr. Arthur Cheney and formally introduced to Mr. Curtis Guild, who was to act as spokesman for the donors.

MR. CHENEY'S REMARKS.

Mr. Cheney spoke as follows:

Mr. Guild and Ladies and Gentlemen: I have the honor to present Miss Charlotte Cushman, who, tonight, in this house, has closed her eventful career as the leading tragedienne of the American stage. She needs no introduction from me, and I am sure here, in her native city, she has the hands and hearts of many warm and true friends.

MR. GUILD'S ADDRESS.

When the applause had subsided Mr. Guild addressed Miss Cushman as follows:

Miss Cushman and Ladies and Gentlemen: The retirement from the dramatic profession of one who has so long been recognized as one of its most distinguished representatives, and who has done so much to elevate dramatic art, is in itself an event of more than ordinary moment. But when it occurs here in the native city of the artist, and among those who have followed her from the commencement of her eventful career with hope and admiration, and claimed her as our own with pride, at its culmination it is felt that the occasion should not be permitted to pass without an attempt to express, in the most decided manner, the feelings of your friends, who deem it a privilege to do you honor.

Now that you are about to cast aside the robes of the artist forever: to abdicate, not resign, the dramatic sceptre of the American stage—for who is to wield that which you have so long swayed as queen?—now that you are to close your eventful and successful career with a fame honorably won and name untarnished you that "have outstripped all praise and made it half behind you"—it is not surprising that every true lover of dramatic art hastens to do eager homage, and that hosts of warm and hearty friends should press forward for the last hand-grasp of her whom they honor and respect.

We cannot part with the great actress of our time but with emotion and tender regard. We remember the many hours of intellectual enjoyment for which we are indebted to her; how the characters of the great bard, by the potent mystic wand of her creative genius, have appeared to actually live before us, as we were thrilled with horror by the fierce ambition of the murderous wife of the Scottish thane, or our hearts pulsated with pity for the wrongs of the noble and abused queen of the bluff and bloody Henry, or beat with emotion for the gentle lovers of Verona. And what additional interest has been lent to one, at least, of those remarkable creations of the great Scottish novelist by a portraiture of character that shall ever live, while the history of dramatic art is chronicled, as one of the most wonderful and impressive ever presented upon the dramatic stage. It may truthfully be said, after witnessing your impersonations, yours is ——the spell o'er hearts

Which only acting lends—
The youngest of the sister Arts,
Where all their beauty blends.
For ill can poetry express
Full many a tone of thought sublime,
And Painting, mute and motionless,
She is but a glance of time.
But by the mighty actor brought,
Illusion's perfect triumphs come
Verse ceases to be airy thought,
And sculpture to be dumb.

The player's profession, we well know, from the earliest days, when in Greece it was held honorable and in Rome a despised vocation, has been assailed by fierce opponents. The great poet of all time himself, we read in the annals of the English stage, came into the world when the English portion of it was ringing with the denunciations of Archbishop Grindal against the profession which the child in his humble cradle at Stratford-upon-Avon was about to ennoble for ever. We need not, however, go back so far as Shakspeare's time to cite the fierce opposition that dramatic art has encountered, or enumerate the obstacles that the dramatic artist must have overcome.

The discouragements in the thorny path of the profession may well make genius, even when accompanied by resolution, almost shrink from attempting it. Let us remember, however, that the art has been sanctioned by the great, befriended by the good, and supported by the people, and moreover bear in mind that in this profession, whose members are in the full blaze of public observation and scrutiny, who are too often censured without reason or condemned without excuse—who are frequently judged as a class by the errors of individuals, those who do pass the fiery ordeal unscathed, who stand before us the real representatives of the dramatic profession, deserve from us our garlands as the exponents of a great and glorious art; and, upon the present occasion more than that, the high regard that genius combined with nobleness of mind and purity of character exacts from all true and honest hearts.

We have beheld with pride in our modern Athens, the laurels awarded our warriors, the bays bestowed upon our poets, and our scholars and orators

——win the wreath of fame
And write on memory's scroll a deathless name.

And with equal exultation is it that we contemplate the addition that has been made to that brilliant circle of dramatic lights which counts in its constellation a Garrick, a Kemble, and a Siddons, of our own American luminary which sparkles with equal brilliancy to that of any of its great associates. We come here tonight to accord that homage which genius does not ask, but commands—to give you, not evidence of popularity—mere popularity which is as the brightness of the passing meteor or the fleeting splendors of the rainbow—but to express an appreciation of genius and the kind regard of genuine friendship. As the humble instrument of those who have honored me with this pleasing, but difficult task, I am aware that their sentiments have been but imperfectly expressed, but in asking you to accept, in the name of your kind friends in this your native city, this evidence of their regard, I know I express the feelings in saying "the greatest is behind," for beyond this comparatively trifling token of esteem of your merits as an artist, is a friendship, which, though death may sever, time shall not destroy.

And, in conclusion, let me say, that though you may now pass from the mimic stage, distant be the day when your exit shall be made from the great stage on which we men and women all are mere players; though you may not have our hands in future before the curtain, they will cordially grasp yours in the social circle which you adorn as modestly as you have upheld the dramatic art worthily and honorably. And now, when we depart, and when

"Fallen is the curtain; the last scene is o'er,
The fav'rite actress treads the stage no more."

We shall each and all of us remember that though

"Many the parts you played, yet to the end
Your best were those of sister, lady, friend."

Mr. Guild's remarks were frequently interrupted by applause.

MISS CUSHMAN'S REPLY.

As soon as Miss Cushman could control her emotions, she replied in the following words:

The less I deserve,
The more merit lies in your bounty.

Gentlemen—Your unexpected kindness deprives me of all words in which to thank you, and the few I can find will be but poor and feeble expressions of what I feel. But I would beg you to believe all that the heart prompts, as my deep and earnest appreciation of the honor you have done me. It is especially grateful because it comes to me here, in my own native city, and at the hands of those who, from the beginning to the end of my career, from my first appearance on the stage to my last appearance, have been truly

Brothers, friends and countrymen.

In leaving the stage finally, it has always been my intention to make my last appearance in Boston; and this suggests to me a little explanation, which, with your permission, I would like to make on this occasion. It has been implied, if not declared, and very often repeated, in the newspapers throughout the country, that I should not have appeared again upon the stage after the great ovation which was paid to me in New York. At least, so the gentlemen of the press decided, and many comments have been made upon me in the papers derogatory to my dignity as a woman, and my position as an artist. I have passed on, in the even tenor of my way, little regarding, on my own account, these would-be censors and judges; but it seems to me proper that I should explain to you, in whose esteem I have a long vested interest which must not be endangered without a strong and earnest protest on my part, that if my last engagement in New York was announced as my farewell to the stage, it was done by no act, or will, or word of mine. I had no such intention, indeed, I could not have had, for I had already made many other engagements for the season, which I have been endeavoring to fulfill, concluding, as was always my dearest wish, here in my own city of Boston, which I have always dearly loved, and where I had rather have been born than on any other spot of the inhabitable globe. I hope I have not tired your patience, but I could not rest without endeavoring to remove even the shadow of a shade which might cloud the perfect harmony between me and my public, who I hope and trust will accept this explanation from me. Looking back upon my career, I think I may, "without vain glory," say that I have not, by any act of my life, done discredit to the city of my birth.

Then, turning to the committee of presentation, Miss Cushman continued:

So now, with a full but more free heart, I revert to you. To this last beautiful manifestation of your good will toward me, and to all who have so graciously interested themselves to do me this honor, I can only say

More is their due
Than more than all can pay.

Believe me, I carry with me in my retirement no memory sweeter than my associations with Boston and my Boston public. From my full heart, God bless you and farewell.

The remarks of Miss Cushman elicited frequent plaudits, and at the close of her address there was another enthusiastic outburst.

Although Miss Cushman is to be seen no more upon the stage, she intends to give readings next season.

FAIRMAN ROGERS'S HOUSE.

THE NEW SUMMER RESIDENCE ON OCHRE POINT.—AN ELABORATE COTTAGE IN WHICH TO FIND A REFUGE FROM THE CENTENNIAL CITY.

The Summer residence now being erected on Ochre point for Prof. Fairman Rogers of Philadelphia may be styled a cottage by the sea only by poetic license. The literal location is obvious, but the uninitiated might be excused for asking "If this is a cottage, what is a large house?" The hospitable main entrance, protected by a commodious porte cochere, opens directly in the main hall of the house. It runs north and south, and the large French windows, which form a large proportion of the end of the hall opposite the entrance, afford a splendid marine view. The hall is twenty one feet wide and forty nine feet long. There is an octagonal opening in the second floor giving a part of the hall the height of two stories,—twenty five feet. The hall is wainscoted with butternut in panels about four and a half feet, above which the plaster is corrugated, and painted a light brown, with a large floral border next to the woodwork.

The first room on the right, as one enters the hall, is the library, 18x18 with a large bay window. Like the hall, the woodwork is butternut. Immediately south of this is the parlor, 25x18, with trimmings of white and gilt. The walls are divided into panels of embossed paper of a very light color, around which a gilt moulding is broken. Outside of the moulding the walls are tinted a shade darker, and a still darker shade is used below a white and gilt moulding which runs about two feet above the floor. On both the south and west sides of the parlor the windows open onto a broad piazza. Between two windows on the west side is an immense mirror. On the south side the French windows open seven feet from the floor. The lower panes of glass are six feet ten inches high, and the upper panes are three feet six inches. Every window in the house, kitchen windows included, is French plate glass.

Across the hall from the parlor is the dining room, 18x23. The large windows on the south side give a fine view of the sea from any part of the room, while they are shaded by the roof of the piazza. The room is wainscoted with butternut. Between the panels and the top molding of the wainscoting is a row of cross sections of a stick of butternut about two inches in diameter. These are slightly concaved and when polished and waxed will reflect the light so as to produce a brilliant effect. Back of the dining room, that is, opposite the library, is a reception room which has an outer door and a staircase of its own. The main hall is intended for dancing purposes, and the guests can be admitted by the reception room door, and pass directly up stairs, whence they will enter the hall by the main staircase. This, and the passage way leading into the L on the east side of the house, are between the reception room and the dining room.

This L is one story and a French roof in height, and contains downstairs the kitchen, pantries, and store rooms, and upstairs some of the servants' rooms. The second story of the main building contains sleeping and bath rooms all of which open into a central hall, which, through the octagonal opening referred to, affords an excellent view of the main hall. All the woodwork on this floor that can be seen from the hall is butternut. All the woodwork inside the rooms is pine dressed with shellac. The third floor, or French roof, contains servants' rooms. The woodwork is all pine.

The door frames are quite unique. The cross piece at the top is let through the uprights and fastened with pins and this style of joint is applied to the furniture throughout the house. The furniture of the parlor is of white and gilt, and that of [the dining room and library of butternut, very plain and massive, and matching the balusters. Beadwork characterizes all the furniture and woodwork of the house, and the furniture is all severely plain, and antique in style.

A conspicuous feature [of the hall is the newel post at the foot of the stairs. It is hexagonal, six feet high and the base is thirteen inches in diameter. The top stands on six balusters, each four inches in diameter with open space between, and an ornamental gas pipe passes through the center, and the whole is surmounted by a gas burner in the style of a carcel lamp. Besides this one in the main hall their are in the houses fifteen other complete newels and four half ones, each surmounted by such a gas burner as the one described.

All the furniture is made according to the Eastlake theories that furniture should be made for use rather than for ornament, and that such decorations as are used should be cut out of the article, nothing being put on. One chamber set is of bird's eye maple with a very plain border picked in with red. Another is of butternut and brown, and a third is of tulip wood, while the furniture of the dressing room is of walnut. All the furniture has been made in accordance with the tastes of Prof. and Mrs. Rogers, who have given their personal attention to the matter.

One peculiarity of the house is that every nail head is concealed by wood. The mouldings are fastened by nails driven in a groove through which is afterward slipped a piece of bead work moulding entirely hiding the nails.

The carriage house is forty feet square, and contains stalls for eleven horses. Overhead are five rooms for servants.

The architects are Furness & Hewitt of Philadelphia. Mr. Furness is a pupil of R. M. Hunt. The builders are D. C. Geer & Co., F. A. Allen being the partner immediately in charge. All the lumber was furnished and the mill work done, including wainscotings, mouldings, etc., by Swinburne, Peckham & Co. John C. Staddard does the painting. McAdam & Openshaw, the plumbing, James Groff, the masonry, J. L. & G. A. Hazard are making all the furniture and the newels come from Thomas S. Nason. George Hardwick is the landscape gardener and the general management of the entire affair has been in the hands of Col. George E. Waring, Jr.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

The May term of the court of common pleas opened this morning at 9:10 o'clock, Judge Burgess presiding. The docket was called, and cases were assigned for trial. John Gilpin and Barney McDermott were naturalized. The grand jury was sworn and charged, and is now out.

The first case for trial was the City of Newport vs. Patrick Horgan. This is an action of trespass on the case, brought to recover the amount given in judgment in a former case, in which Charles Boyle et ux. were the plaintiffs and the City of Newport the defendant. On the 1st of January 1871, Mary Boyle, while walking on the sidewalk in Dearborn street, opposite land owned by Patrick Horgan, fell over a heap of earth into a hole and therefore broke her arm. For this injury, judgment was recovered against the city in an action in the supreme court. The city now sues Horgan, alleging that he is responsible for the obstructions which were the occasion of the injury to Mrs. Boyle. Damages are laid at $3500. F. B. Peckham, Jr., city solicitor, for the plaintiff, W. P. Sheffield for the defendant.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Jacob G. Anthony, of Westport, Mass., and others have sold a lot of land and buildings, between Sisson's and Waite's wharves, to Charles W. Anthony for $1,000.

The price paid by Patrick H. Horgan for the property on the corner of Bellevue avenue and Clarendon court was $16,017.67. The amount of ground is 5319.225 square feet.

WASHBURN'S LAST SENSATION.

The entertainment at Music Hall last evening was in all respects as anticipated, fully sustaining the reputation accorded to Washburn's as one of the best variety shows ever produced in America. From first to last the programme was meritorious and highly satisfactory to the audience, which was one of the largest seen at Music Hall this season. The Colemans in comedy, Ad Weaver and Young Eddie Weaver, Manchester and Jennings, and James Rowland in his truly wonderful trapeze acts were particularly meritorious in their respective roles, but nearly everything was first class. Washburn's indomitable energy, sagacity and enterprise have justly won him a high place with the amusement-loving public.—[New Haven Union.

Washburn's Sensation appears at the Opera House in this city next Monday and Tuesday evenings with a matinee on Tuesday afternoon.

Wilbour, Cornelius B. Brownell, Henry R. Butler, Theodore B. Grinnel, Peleg Peckham, John E. Soule and John T. Pettey.

THE TWO ORPHANS.—The drama of the "Two Orphans" has an intensely interesting plot, and only needs a good stage production to secure for it a strong hold upon the sympathies of an audience. Fortunately in its presentation here it has had the benefit of an appreciative company from the Union Square Theatre, whose acting has secured a fine portrayal of the strong dramatic parts, and in consequence of this, its repetition last night at the Opera House attracted a numerous attendance, and there was no lack of interest or enjoyment from beginning to close. Miss Lillie Eldridge as Louise, in the leading character, strengthened the favorable impression which her first appearance in Hartford established, and in general the support was exceptionally good. If we can have here such companies as this one, or like the Fifth avenue company in a different style of plays, there will be an ever increasing interest displayed in dramatic productions, and managers will reap the profit thereof.—[Exchange.

A SYSTEM OF VENTILATION.

Some experiments in ventilation recently made by Mr. Tobin, a retired merchant of Leeds, England, throw considerable light on this subject. According to his own account he was one day watching a current of water which flowed into a still pond. He observed that the flowing water kept together and continued its motion, until it struck the opposite bank, when it curved gently around on either side of the point of contact, and was lost imperceptibly in the general body, which had its outlet for overflow at one side. He reflected that a current of air introduced into a room would act in precisely the same manner, keeping together until it encountered an obstacle, then mixing insensibly with the air around it and finally compelling an overflow wherever there was an opening. All this being true, it was only necessary, in addition, to devise a method for introducing the air without producing a draught upon the inmates of the room. This he accomplished by placing underneath the floor of the borough police court of Leeds, which was the room selected for the public experiment, three horizontal shafts communicating with the outer air through a cellar grating. From these he brought eight vertical shafts through the floor at different points—these vertical shafts each being four feet in hight, and about five inches in diameter, and so situated as to be convenient for the purposes of the room. Through these vertical shafts there immediately poured currents of pure air in volume equal to the difference in density between the atmosphere of the room and that outside. These currents of air, according to the published accounts, are strong enough, when the room is filled with the ordinary occupants of a police court, to support feathers or other light substances; and yet until they strike the ceiling any one of them has so slight a lateral motion as to affect part of the flame of a candle held over it and leave the remainder of the flame undisturbed. On striking the ceiling the currents diffuse themselves in the surrounding air of the room and thus force the vitiated air through a small opening in the skylight, formerly used as an inlet for the outside air, but now adjusted as a place of egress for the warmed and tainted atmosphere of the room.

This system of ventilation has been applied since by Mr. Tobin to other public and private buildings in England, and its universal success thus far has attracted great attention there. Since it has become well known, various letters have appeared in the English newspapers to the effect that Mr. Tobin's discovery is no discovery at all; but it seems to be certain that rooms which hitherto have been poorly ventilated are now by its means kept as fresh, without being uncomfortably cooled, as an open park. The great value of Mr. Tobin's experiments lies in the demonstration that through the difference in density between the air of an occupied room and that out doors good ventilation may be secured, and that because of the increasing density of the air from above downward the ventilating currents, as the rule, will flow from below upward. All that is required is to provide a way of access for the fresh air and an outlet for the foul air, and then the air itself will do all the work; in fact, will move on a small scale like the trade winds.

General Schofield, who is in command of the Pacific coast, made over $100,000 by speculating wisely in the "great bonanza." General Stoneman, having retired from the army, resides near Los Angeles, California, and his vast orange groves, now a source of profitable revenue, will be a large fortune to his heirs years hence.

SOULE.—In this city, 7th inst., Gracie Adella, only daughter of Charles and Lizzie Soule, aged 9 years, 1 months 23 days.

"Put away the little playthings
That the darling used to wear,
She will need them on earth never,
She has climbed the golden stair.
She is with the happy angels,
And I long for her sweet kiss,
Where her little feet are waiting
In the realm of perfect bliss.

"Lay aside her little playthings
Wet with mother's pearly tears.
How we shall miss little Gracie,
All the coming weary years.
Fold the dainty little dresses,
That she never more will wear,
For her little feet are wa'ting,
Up above the golden stair.

"Kiss the little curly tresses
Cut from her bright golden hair,
Do the angels kiss our darling
In the realm so bright and fair?
Oh we pray to meet our darling,
For a long, long sweet embrace,
Where the little feet are waiting,
And we meet her face to face.

Many imagine that there is no cure for Bright's disease of the kidneys, also bladder and glandular complaints. They are in error. Hunt's Remedy promptly removes such ailments as well as mental and physical debility, diabetes, dropsy, gravel, maladies caused from imprudence, dissipation, errors of youth, female irregularities and complaints of the urino-genital organs, all of which succumb to its genial influence.

How Not to Die.

Thousands fall a prey to disease not because the maladies that affect them are necessarily fatal but because they lack the requisite amount of active vitality to make a valiant resistance to the enemy. It is a wise precaution to keep the body always in a state of defence—always prepared to "fend off" the germs of epidemic and other disorders, and to baffle the evil influence of damp miasma and sudden thermometrical changes. There is no difficulty in doing this. It is a fact as well authenticated as that two and two make four, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is specially adapted to this purpose, and for the simple reason that its invigorating and regulating properties are superior to those of any other medicine in the world. During the twenty years that it has been in general use, ample opportunities have been afforded to compare its medicinal properties with those of other preparations claiming to be of a similar class, and the result has been its adoption by the American people as the standard tonic of the age. Its introduction into every civilized portion of the western hemisphere, and an annual sale which dwarfs into insignificance the demand for all its would-be competitors.

The record upon which its popularity rests is a curiosity in medical literature, for it includes an almost unlimited variety of human ailments and disabilities. In fact, no other remedy possesses such a variety of hygienic virtues, and it is to these characteristics that it owes its prestige as a household medicine.

☞ One of the most serious objections to the use of Magnesia, both carbonate and calcined, which is in common use, is that it adheres to the coat of the stomach and intestines, and occasions obstructions, which are annoying, and often productive of disease. Such an incident never occurs in the use of Milk of Magnesia. Caswell, Hazard & Co., Agents. my1-1m

Newport Daily News.

TUESDAY, MAY 18, 1875.

GENERAL NEWS.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A Verdict in Favor of the Corliss Engine Company.

WASHINGTON, May 17.

The court of claims today declared the case of the Corliss Steam Engine Company. The claimant had contracted with the Navy Department for the construction of steam engines. Subsequently the department decided not to complete the engines, and in accordance with a written agreement the company delivered the boilers, engines and appurtenances at the Boston navy yard in their unfinished condition. The court, through Chief-Justice Drake, said the agreement between the claimant and the Navy Department was singularly clear and altogether free from taint. It was the duty of the government to comply strictly with its obligations to the contractor. Judgment was given in behalf of the claimant to the amount of $257,588.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Strike of the Fall River Carders.—Unsympathetic Co-Laborers.

FALL RIVER, May 17.

Four mills remained closed today on account of the strike of the carding room help. They received little or no sympathy from citizens or the other classes of operatives. The carding room operatives are but a very small portion of the whole number of hands employed in a mill, but by their stopping work the entire mill is obliged to shut down soon afterward, consequently putting a great number of operatives upon the street. They strike without consulting other branches of help, and it is thought if these difficulties are not stopped very soon that the weavers' committee will take the matter in hand and furnish help to take the places of the striking carders.

NOMINATION OF MAJOR GENERAL AND BRIGADIER GENERALS.

In accordance with the provisions of the new militia law, and by orders from the Adjutant-General's office, the field officers of the several battalions R. I. M., assembled in convention at Horse Guards Armory, Providence, at 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon, for the purpose of nominating a brigadier general of each brigade, and a major general of the division, to be presented at the next session of the General Assembly for election. Adjutant General LeFavour presided at the several meetings under the law. The attendance was quite good.

FIRST BRIGADE.

The officers of the first brigade were first called to order, when Major H. V. A. Joslin was chosen clerk. An informal ballot for brigadier general was taken, resulting in five votes for General Thomas W. Chace and three for General A. L. Burdick. At a formal ballot General Chace received six votes and General Burdick two, when, upon motion, General Chace was declared the unanimous nominee of the convention.

SECOND BRIGADE.

The officers of the second brigade organized by the choice of Col. Amos Sherman as clerk. An informal ballot resulted in six votes for Gen. Fred Miller, and one each for Gen. C. R. Dennis and Col. Elisha Dyer, Jr. A formal ballot gave seven for Gen. Miller, and one for Lieut. Col. H. M. Howe, and on motion, Gen. Miller was declared the unanimous nominee of the convention.

THE DIVISION.

The nominees for brigade commanders and the field officers of the several battalions then went into convention to nominate a major general, and chose Col. Amos Sherman clerk. At an informal ballot, Gen. William R. Walker received the entire vote, a formal ballot gave the same result, and Gen. William R. Walker was declared the nominee of the convention for major general.

THE PEOPLE WANT PROOF.

There is no medicine prescribed by Physicians, or sold by Druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for Severe Coughs, Colds settled on the Breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that uses it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by James H. Taylor.

YES OR NO?

[These stanzas furnish a poetical illustration of Millais's charming picture, representing a beautiful young lady of the present day, standing by a desk on which lies an open letter from her suitor, whose photograph is held in one of the hands folded behind her, while she gazes through an open window at the setting sun, and until the starlight, striving to find the true answer to her lover's appeal.]

Say, shall it be Yes? O tell me Sun,
Ere you sink in the West so low—
You are never troubled with doubts, not one—
Say, shall it be Yes or No?

I have waited and questioned all the day,
Nor do I the better know
Than I did at the first, if the better way
Is to answer him Yes or No.

The sun goes down to his resting place,
And the stars their faces show:
O Stars, that glorify all the space,
Pray, shall it be Yes or No?

But stars have no sympathy, none at all,
A-cold in that far-off glow,
And they only mock at me when I call,
"Shall I answer him Yes or No?"

Not even a bird on his homeward wing
Would a comforting note bestow,
And I listened in vain for his voice to sing
An echoing Yes or No.

The bird had a mate in the maple's nest,
Who waited his love song—Lo!
There is something astir in my awakened breast,
That is rather like Yes than No.

And so nowhere outside of yourself, my heart,
Is the word that will help you, so
You shall look within for the tender art
To answer him Yes or No!

—[Mary B. Dodge, in Harper's Magazine for May.

THREE POINTS FOR CONSIDERATION.

During the past five years the VEGETINE has been steadily working itself into public favor, and those who were at first most incredulous in regard to its merits are now its most ardent friends and supporters.

There are three essential causes for those having such a horror of patent medicines, changing their opinion and lending their influence toward the advancement of VEGETINE. 1st—It is an honestly prepared medicine from barks, roots and herbs. 2d—It honestly accomplishes all that is claimed for it, without leaving any bad effects in the system. 3d—It presents honest vouchers in testimonials from honest, well-known citizens, whose signatures are a sufficient guarantee of their earnestness in the matter. Taking into consideration the vast quantity of medicine brought conspicuously before the public through the flaming advertisements in the newspaper columns, with no proof of merit or genuine vouchers of what it has done, we should be pardoned for manifesting a small degree of pride in presenting the following testimonial from Rev. J. S. DICKERSON, D. D., the popular and ever genial pastor of the South Baptist Church, Boston:

The Tired Body Sues for Sleep.

BOSTON, March 16, 1874.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—It is as much from a sense of duty as of gratitude that I write to say that your VEGETINE—even if it is a patent medicine—has been of great help to me when nothing else seemed to avail which I could safely use. Either excessive mental work or unusual care brings upon me a nervous exhaustion that desperately needs sleep, but as desperately defies it. Night after night the poor, tired body sues for sleep until the day-dawn is welcomed back and we begin our work tired out with an almost fruitless chase after rest. Now I have found that a little VEGETINE taken just before I retire gives me sweet and immediate sleep, and without any of the evil effects of the usual narcotics. I think two things would tend to make brain-workers sleep: 1st—A little less work. 2d—A little more VEGETINE. This prescription has helped me.

Now I have a particular horror of "patent medicine," but I have a greater horror of being afraid to tell the straight out truth. The VEGETINE has helped me, and I own it up. Yours &c.,

J. S. DICKERSON.

Valuable Evidence.

The following unsolicited testimonial from Rev. O. T. WALKER, D. D., formerly pastor of Bowdoin Square Church, and at present settled in Providence, R. I., must be esteemed as reliable evidence.

No one should fail to observe that this testimonial is the result of two years' experience with the use of VEGETINE in the Rev. Mr. Walker's family, who now pronounces it invaluable.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 164 Transit Street.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your VEGETINE. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need an invigorating, renovating tonic.

O. T. WALKER,
Formerly Pastor of Bowdoin Sq. Church, Boston.

The Best Evidence.

The following letter from Rev. E. S. BEST, pastor M. E. Church, Natick, Mass., will be read with interest by many physicians. Also those suffering from the same disease as afflicted the son of the Rev. E. S. Best. No person can doubt this testimony, and there is no doubt about the curative powers of VEGETINE.

NATICK, Mass., Jan. 1, 1874.

Mr. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—We have good reason for regarding your VEGETINE a medicine of the greatest value. We feel assured that it has been the means of saving our son's life. He is now seventeen years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from necrosis of his leg, caused by scrofulous affection, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A council of able physicians could give us but the faintest hope of his ever rallying, two of the number declaring that he was beyond the reach of human remedies, that even amputation could not save him, as he had not vigor enough to endure the operation. Just then we commenced giving him VEGETINE, and from that time to the present he has been continuously improving. He has lately resumed his studies, thrown away crutches and cane, and walks about cheerfully and strong.

Though there is still some discharge from the opening where the limb was lanced, we have the fullest confidence that in a little time he will be perfectly cured.

He has taken about three dozen bottles of VEGETINE, but lately uses but little, as he declares that he is too well to be taking medicine.

Respectfully yours,
E. S. BEST,
MRS. L. C. F. BEST.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—From personal benefit received by its use, as well as from personal knowledge of those whose cures thereby have seemed almost miraculous, I can most heartily and sincerely recommend VEGETINE for the complaints for which it is claimed to cure.

CATARRH CURED.

STATEMENT OF MR. G. F. RICKETSON OF TIVERTON.

Mr. Editor: Please state my case in your paper for that such cures can be performed, should be known. Catarrh with all its disagreeable symptoms afflicted me for years and until dyspepsia and indigestion resulted. I was fast running down for I could not eat anything that agreed with me, and I did not know what to do for folks said "Catarrh could not be cured, and you are foolish to throw away your money," &c., but I had to do something and I went to Dr. Carpenter. He cured me, I have been perfectly well the last few months, and have no reason to think I shall ever have any more trouble of that kind. I want it known for so many persons think Catarrh cannot be cured.

GEO. F. RICKETSON,
With Capt. Joseph Church, Tiverton.
Newport, May 15, 1875.

TESTIMONY OF MRS. JOHN W. DAVIS

OF NEWPORT.

My grandson, Burnside, (son of Mr. Benjamin Davis) was sadly afflicted with Catarrh. Besides the annoying and disagreeable symptoms usually accompanying this loathsome disease, his memory was becoming impaired. He paid little attention to what was going on around him, or what was said to him; did not take much interest in anything, and was gradually losing his hearing. We felt that something must be done to save him, and therefore placed him under Dr. Carpenter's treatment, which proved successful and satisfactory. He is restored to health, both mentally and physically, and to use his own words, is "A NEW MADE BOY." We feel it a duty to make the case public, that others may know where they can obtain relief from that dreadful disease.

MRS. JOHN W. DAVIS.
Bay View avenue, April 29th, 1875.

STATEMENT OF MR. G. E. HULL.

This may certify to Dr. Carpenter's success in treating my daughter who had become so deaf from catarrh that we were obliged to speak very loudly to her, to make her hear us. We found that she might become totally deaf, the way she was going on. Dr. C.'s treatment has removed the catarrh and deafness to such an extent, she can now hear a whisper. This case is well known in Jamestown, where we reside.

G. E. HULL.
Newport, April 15th, 1875.

Mr. Arnold's Card.

DR. CARPENTER,—Dear sir: your treatment for chronic catarrh in my case has been successful, although the complaint was of some years standing and had begun to impair my hearing. I think I am perfectly cured and recommend similar sufferers to apply to you. I reside in Jamestown.

F. A. ARNOLD.
NEWPORT, R. I., April 1st, 1875.

Testimony of Captain Hammond of Newport.

W. H. CARPENTER, M. D.,—DEAR SIR:—Allow me to thank you, through the NEWS and JOURNAL, for the great benefits conferred upon me by your treatment for Chronic Catarrh. Five weeks ago, when I consulted you, I was prostrated and nearly worn out with that terrible disease. Under your treatment I began to improve at once, and in two weeks was able to resume my employment, and have continued to improve up to this time. Yours Sincerely,

J. F. HAMMOND,

TESTIMONY OF MR. F. M. HAWLEY, OF PROVIDENCE.

(From Providence Journal.)

W. H. CARPENTER, M. D.,—Dear Sir: Your treatment of my wife for Chronic Catarrh has been attended with the happiest results, and I deem it a duty as well as a pleasure to tender you our thanks publicly that other sufferers may be induced to apply to you. We believed the disease incurable, and should not have consulted you had not a friend informed us of the success that attended your treatment of her, in a very aggravated case. Yours, gratefully.

FREDERICK M. HAWLEY,
With J. B. Barnaby & Co., corner North Main and College streets.
Providence, April 6th, 1875.

CERTIFICATE OF MR. JOHN CASWELL,

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 12, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF NEWS:—I wish to recommend Dr. Carpenter's treatment to such of the community as have Scrofula. I inherited it, and it has always run in my blood, and last Fall it became terrible, injuring my health, and attacking my head and face particularly and so disfigured me that a neighbor that met me did not know me until I spoke to him. I applied to Dr. Carpenter, at the Perry House, and his medicines have met with gratifying success. My health is now good, have very little trouble with the humor, face looks natural, and I hope with a little more treatment, to eradicate the poisonous humor from my system entirely. I reside in Middletown.

JOHN CASWELL.

Catarrh and Polypus.

Home Testimony.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 6th, 1874.

This is to proclaim what Dr. Carpenter has done for me. I suffered from Catarrh 45 years, and the last 10 years my nasal passages were filled with Polypus. I employed physicians from time to time, and two years ago, went to Boston, and was doctored there three months, and left off worse than I began, and I was almost discouraged. But I felt that I must do something, for I was obliged to keep my mouth open and my health was becoming impaired. So I went to Fall River last Spring, and placed myself under the care of Dr. Carpenter. His treatment proved highly satisfactory. He removed and cured the Polypus, I can breathe naturally, the Catarrh troubles me very little and altogether I am comfortable and as well as a man 60 years of age, can expect to be, and I hope this testimony may be the means of securing relief to other sufferers. I reside in Middletown.

ASA PECKHAM.

Permanent Cures fo Scrofulous Catarrh.

Testimony of a Citizen of Newport.

My son and daughter were sufferers from Scrofulous Catarrh from birth, and with discharges, swellings upon their necks; and an utter inability to breathe through the nose, they were uncomfortable enough, when we placed them under the care of Dr. Carpenter in 1865. His remedies cured them in a few months and they remain well to this day. I publish this with the hope it may be the means of securing relief to others.

A CARD FROM

Mr. John Beattie Jr.

(From Fall River News.)

FALL RIVER, Jan. 21, 1874.

W. H. CARPENTER, M. D.,—My Dear Sir:—Allow me thus publicly to express my gratitude for the great benefit conferred upon me by your treatment. I was afflicted for years with Catarrh which had become a constant torment to me, the irritation and inflammation having increased until ulceration was the consequence. Your treatment has been attended with the happiest results. I am now comfortable, my head feels well, and I believe myself cured of that terrible disease.

Look at This.

The last ten years have been very disastrous to insurance companies in the United States. More than sixty have failed altogether, and many others have reduced their capital stock or otherwise became greatly weakened. But there are a few that by prudent management and wise liberality on the part of stock holders are much stronger now then ever. Consider the following figures taken from the reports of the Insurance commissioner, of the state of New York, for 1864 and 1871.

ÆTNA of Hartford, Assets in 1861.	$3,800,429. 93
" " " 1871.	5,845,802. 03
Increase of assets in ten years	2,045,372. 10
INSURANCE of North America, 1861.	$1,715,171. 78
" " " 1871.	3,263,000. 00
Increase of assets in ten years,	1,547,828. 29
ROYAL of Liverpool, (American Funds) Assets in 1861.	$1,827,984. 0
" in 1871.	3,073,483. 8
Increase in ten years,	1,245,499. 73
HARTFORD, of Hartford, Assets, 1861.	$1,575,920. 48
" " " 1871.	2,415,681. 51
Increase in ten years,	839,761. 03

This wonderful growth during a term of unparalleled disaster is not the result of good fortune merely, for these companies have been the heaviest losers in Portland, Chicago, Boston and other cities, and have paid out millions dollars each year. The facts commend themselves to persons who want RELIABLE insurance in these days of trial. A policy in such companies is worth twice as much as one in any of the untried institutions that are springing up on every hand. The rate is the same.

Dwelling houses and their contents insured for five years at very low prices—lower in fact than is charged by many of the Mutuals where the insured is liable to heavy assessments in case of a large fire in any of our larger towns.

Policies written on all classes of property, and losses paid at this agency.
